Launch Credit Union Offers Free Financial Education

Merritt Island, Florida (12/01/22)

Launch Credit Union recently partnered with Currency Marketing to help bring financial education to its members and the community through the “It’s a Money Thing” program.

The program utilizes fun, engaging videos to educate young adults with financial education materials offered both online and offline. The library of videos includes a vast array of educational topics ranging from how to boost your credit score, comparing credit cards, leasing vs. buying, how to organize your finances and much more. Launch Credit Union offers these videos for free on its website at launchcu.com/financial-education. Launch will also set up classroom education and workshops for those interested in enjoying a more personal approach to financial education.

“The first step in financial success is learning. With this new platform, you can select from many topics and learn on your own time, at your own pace,” says Kelly Haskins, VP Marketing for Launch CU. “These videos take you through what mistakes not to make. We are pleased to be able to share this financial education not only with our credit union members, but with anyone interested in learning more about finances and saving money.”

Launch Credit Union is a full service, community credit union, with seventeen branches, and is rated 5-Stars on Bauerfinancial.com. Membership is open to all who live, work, worship or attend school in one of the counties we serve.
